7 Communities Plan Memorial Day Services

Monday Set For Detailed Programs

3 School Bands Book Double Duty

Memorial Day programs in seven Pickaway County communities were being arranged Thursday.

Circleville, Williamsport and Ashville high school bands are slated for double duty during the services. The Circleville band will play for both the Circleville and New Holland services.

Ashville's band will play at both South Bloomfield and Reber Hill cemeteries and Williamsport will play at home and in Circleville.

Circleville's rites begin earliest of the county programs, slated to begin at the Memorial Hall at 8:45 a. m. In case of rain the services are to be held inside the hall at 10 a. m.

Ed Ebert, chairman of the Memorial Day services for Circleville said Fred L. Donnelly of Pinckney street will be officer of the day during the rites. Donnelly is a Spanish War veteran.

* * *

AIDES TO DONNELLY in the parade will be Eve Merriman, president of the Disabled American Veterans organization; Jack Bivens, commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars; James Price, commander of the Amvets; Floyd Dean, commander of Rainbow Vets; and Ebert, commander of the American Legion.

Mack D. Parrett is in charge of grave decorations in Circleville's Forest cemetery. He will be assisted by Merriman, Ebert, Jack Hatzo, James Fouch, William Collins, Donnelly, Lawrence Curl Jr. and Charles Hart. William Ebert will be bugler and Harold Hill will captain the firing squad.

Order of parade calls for the Circleville police to front the group, followed by the color bearers, Circleville high school band, firing squad, the local National Guard unit, marching veterans, Williamsport high school band, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and veterans in automobiles.

Services in Forest cemetery will consist of raising the colors; invocation by the Rev. D. E. Clay, pastor of Church of the Nazarene; services by Daughters of Union Veterans; and "Star Spangled Banner" by the Circleville band.

Memorial Day address will be delivered at the Soldiers' Monument by Prof. Homer R. Cotterman of Capital university. Cotterman is a member of Somerset American Legion post.

Decoration of graves and salute to the dead in soldiers' plot and St. Joseph's cemetery will follow the address.

Other Memorial Day services scheduled in the county and for Kingston are as follows:

Darbyville

Services begin at 2 p. m. in Darbyville Methodist church with Memorial Day address by Guy G. Cline, Pickaway County prosecuting attorney and veteran of World War II.

Circleville Veterans of Foreign Wars Post is to be in charge of the parade and salutes in Darbyville cemetery. The firing squad will be commanded by James McCain and Jack Chester will head the parade.

Nelsonville high school band will present music for the rites, and the VFW Auxiliary, commanded by Mrs. Robert Greisheimer, will form a uniformed unit in the march.

The ceremonies will honor 104 veterans from the War of 1812 down through World War II, according to William J. Miller, who is arranging the observance.

THE ZOO ELEVATED STATION in the British Sector of Berlin becomes the scene of renewed outbreaks of violence after Communist police, shooting into a crowd of rail strikers, killed two men. A score of others were injured, and an on-the-scene cameraman records a typical street brawl. British authorities intervened more forcibly than at any time since 16,000 railway workers walked off their jobs.

RUSSIAN TACTICS BEWILDERING

30 Allied Trains Delayed, Then Released In Germany

BERLIN, May 26—A U. S. military train, stranded overnight in the outskirts of Berlin by Soviet "blockade tactics" which piled up 30 Allied trains, arrived today in the West Berlin Wannsee station.

The American train, carrying 36 passengers and a crew of ten, was followed by a British military train with 70 passengers.

The trains were halted at the Potsdam yards because of Russia's sudden withdrawal last night of German watchmen and signalmen.

The arrival of the passenger trains indicated that the Russians may be easing restrictions which Allied officials say have harassed Western traffic since the end of the Berlin land siege on May 12.

* * *

FORTY-FIVE minutes before the American train was permitted to resume its trip to Berlin, the U. S. military mission in Potsdam was allowed to serve the passengers a meal of ham and vegetables and to load tanks with badly needed water.

Earlier, officials said that lack of food and water was making the plight of the passengers "a matter of great urgency."

Train Commander Capt. Fred McAlpine said the only contact with the Russians was yesterday, with a lieutenant who "gave us absolutely no satisfaction."

The passengers were not allowed during the night to leave the train, which was guarded by Soviet zone police.

Another 35 Americans are on two trains that have been halted "somewhere in the Soviet zone."

Lawrence Wilkinson, U. S. economic adviser, said the Russians had ignored requests to take the passengers off in trucks and buses.

Wilkinson said that repeated efforts to contact Soviet transportation chief, Maj. Gen. P. V. Kvashnin, were fruitless.

* * *

DURING THE NIGHT, Wilkinson added, the Russians unhitched the engine.

Wilkinson reported all truck traffic is moving freely and said that the Russians have informed the West Berlin assembly that some exports from Berlin will be allowed.

Western Allied and German trains piled up outside West Berlin as a result of the sudden traffic halt.

Anti-Communist rail strikers in Berlin proper charged that the move was Soviet-inspired in retaliation for the six-day old walkout by the employes of the Soviet-run city railway.

The 18,000 striking rail workers rejected a Russian offer to pay ten percent of their salaries in West German marks.

The West sector employes said they would refuse to work until they receive their full pay in West marks which are worth four times as much as the Soviet-issued currency.

BAND GETS BOOSTER CHECK

Special Awards Assembly Honors Local Musicians

Circleville high school musicians and scholars were honored at a special awards assembly in the school auditorium Wednesday.

The musical awards portion of the program was highlighted by presentation of a check for nearly $500 donated to the high school band equipment fund by the Circleville Booster Club.

Presentation of the check was made by John Heiskell, Booster president, and James Callihan, one of the organization's directors. The money was earned by the Boosters by sponsorship of the Mills Brothers' Circus here in April.

The musical awards program was outstanding in another way, also, since orchestra letters were presented for the first time in the school's history, according to Principal J. Wray Henry.

* * *

HE SAID that band letters had been given for many years, but that orchestra players were first recognized at the Wednesday program.

The awards were presented by Truman Eberly, high school music instructor.

The first orchestra letters were presented to James Bartholomew, Sue Brown, Gary Brown, Robert Chalfin, Eleanor Lewis, Charles Magill, Ronald Melvin, Beverly Reid, Patsy Johnson, Donald Rinehart, Marjorie Rinehart, James Starkey, Marjorie Thornton and Ruth Troutman.

Three orchestra medals also were awarded during the program for honor work. They went to Jean Heine, Robert Phillips and Edward Wolf.

Band letters were presented to Nancy Bower, Barbara Campbell, Robert Chalfin, Donald Eldridge, John Howard, Warren Leist, Eleanor Lewis, Charles Magill, Donald Metzler, David Parks, Donald Rhoads, Marjorie Rinehart and Hazel Thomas. Drum Majorettes Sue Brown and Peggy Davis also received letters.

Medals for honor band work were presented to Lois Campbell, Roy Denham, Drum Major Delores Elsea, Robert Phillips, Ralph Starkey, Jack Young and Edward Wolf.

* * *

SPECIAL MEDALS for participation in the state finals of musical contests this year were presented to the girls' sextet, brass quartet and two soloists.

Members of the sextet are Jeannine Bell, Nancy Sensenbrenner, Nancy Eshelman, Ruth Troutman, Jean Heine, and Beverly Reid. Sue Brown received a medal as accompanist for the group.

Brass quartet members are James Bartholomew, Donald Rinehart, Edward Wolf and Charles Magill, and soloists who received the awards were Bartholomew and Wolf.

Principal Henry conducted the scholarship awards program, presenting awards for the senior scholarship test, preliminary and finals in the district-state scholarship exams and to the eighth grade boys and girls who ranked high in the eighth year test.

He made special mention of the elementary students who received certificates for their participation inthe recent spelling contest in which Eve-

$1 BILLION MARK IS PASSED

Capital Improvements Seen Setting Record Ohio Budget

COLUMBUS, May 26 — A $60,358,107 capital improvements bill, introduced in the house yesterday, threatened today to boost the cost of Ohio's government in the next biennium over $1 billion mark for the first time in history.

Under suspension of house rules, the 45-page, typewritten bill was referred immediately to the weary finance committee, which labored until 2:30 this morning to clear its decks of the $646 million general appropriations bill.

The committee, which had hoped to cut as much as $20 millions from Gov. Frank Lausche's $649 million budget, managed to slice only about $3 million net from the chief executive's figures. Early this morning it finished its task except for one item and adjourned for a few hours sleep.

Thus the two big money bills now total some $706 million. The exact total will not be known for some days.

* * *

ADDED TO FOUR other major classes of state expenditures which do not appear in either measure, the total soars past the frightening billion-dollar mark.

The other four classes:

1.—The so-called "trust funds" collected by the state and distributed for earmarked purposes, such as gas tax and auto license fees for highway purposes or liquor license fees which are returned to local governments. They would yield an estimated $190 million in two years.

2.—The $24 million, to be taken from the first funds to come into the state treasury, to help finance the retirement of the World War II bonus bonds.

3.—The $80 million in rotary funds—those funds collected by various state agencies and expended by them without specific legislative authorization.

4.—The estimated $23 million in federal highway matching funds. The two bills, plus the four items, would total approximately $1.023 billion.

The house finance committee rejected proposed cuts which would have lopped $10 million from the $179 million school subsidy program and $1,244,000 from the welfare department's administrative costs. The only major cut last night was $3,190,880 from the budgets of the six state universities.

Offsetting this were increases of $1 million in poor relief, $600,000 in aid to dependent children, $400,000 more for the control of bang's disease in cattle, and $200,000 for setting up the brand new unified department of natural resources.

The capital improvements or "additions and betterments" bill discloses two major omissions of items which had been expected to be included.

There are no funds listed either for a new state fairgrounds or rehabilitation of the old grounds. There are no funds for the new state parks east and west of Cleveland, on the Lake Erie shore.

* * *

HOWEVER, the amount for "repairs" for the old fairgrounds in the general appropriations bill was increased from $10,000 to $50,000.

More than a third of the $60 million in the "additions and betterments" bill—$24,946,832—goes to the welfare department and its 21 mental and ten penal or corrective institutions. Most of the welfare grant is earmarked for repairs and improvements, although the bill does provide two $900,000 grants for new receiving hospitals in Cincinnati and Portsmouth. Included are $579,955 for Orient state school in Pickaway County.

Communists Press Scrap In Shanghai

Reds May Hurdle Creek In City

SHANGHAI, May 26—A Chinese Nationalist force of about 150 thousand men reportedly surrendered tonight at the Woosung forts north of Shanghai.

Communist troops closed in on Nationalist rear-guard defenders of Suchow creek which runs through Shanghai.

In day-long fighting between troops separated by only 100 yards of water-front and water, the Communists were repulsed in an effort to seize the bridge which leads across the creek from Szechuen Road.

Communist loudspeakers blared to the Nationalist troops covering a government retreat to Woosung that the Communists could take the creek in two hours.

* * *

DESPITE THE presence of 10,000 battle-hardened veterans in Shanghai, the Communists have not tried to hurdle the creek.

The Communists claim to have cut the Shanghai-Woosung road north of the Kiangwan Airfield, to sever the Nationalist escape line to the sea by way of Woosung.

Reuters agency said that the Communists captured Woosung after crossing the Whangpoo at Kaochiao.

Machinegun and small arms fire crackled across a two square mile area along Soochow creek, which divides the northern and southern halves of Shanghai. The occasional crump of a Communist mortar was heard, but for the most part both sides observed a "gentleman's agreement" to spare the city of six million excessive damage.

Aside from the fighting at Soochow creek, the huge metropolis —richest prize to fall to the Chinese Communists yet — slowly struggled back to normal. South of the creek, trolley, and bus service has resumed, while gas, telephone and power services are continuing to function. Most shops are boarded up in the downtown area, but there has been neither panic nor looting.

JP Here Irked By Filing Of False Charges

An angry denunciation came from Circleville's Justice of the Peace Oscar Root Thursday morning. The justice paced the floor as he delivered his opinions.

Cause of the JP's disturbance was "the habit of people coming up here and swearing out affidavits containing charges that the evidence does not substantiate."

The magistrate said a case of that type came before him Wednesday night.

"The complainant had sworn out affidavits for peace warrants against three persons whom he charged with calling him names and threatening him.

"But when the case came to court, the evidence was lacking. The case was dismissed."

Root indicated he would adopt strong measures to prevent similar occurrances. He said offenders would be charged with contempt of court.

Lancaster Cop Pleads Innocent

LANCASTER, May 26—Lancaster Police Lt. Everett Brown voluntarily walked into the Fairfield County sheriff's office today to answer charges of extortion.

Brown, who appeared with his lawyer and a bondsman, immediately was arraigned before Justice Hollie B. Jones and released under $400 bond. He pleaded innocent to the charges.

Commie Chief Says Ohio Bill Will Force Reds 'Underground'

COLUMBUS, May 26—One of the nation's leading Communists warned today that his party would go underground if the Ohio legislature enacts a law barring reds from all public payrolls.

Arnold Johnson, national legislative director for the Communist Party, told the senate judiciary committee which is considering such a bill:

"I say to you—you force us underground, and it will not be to your advantage."

Sen. Carl Sheppard (R-Akron) demanded what Johnson meant by his "threat." Johnson responded that he had not meant his statement as a threat, but only as a statement that his organization would continue to function as a political party.

When Johnson insisted that "we don't advocate the overthrow of the government" Sheppard countered:

"Then this bill does not affect you."

The bill requires that all public employes, including teachers, sign a loyalty oath as a condition of employment. If they do not sign such an oath they may not be paid, and if they violate the oath they are subject to dismissal — and probably prosecution under other sections of the law dealing with perjury.

3 County Lads Selected For 'Boys' State'

Three Pickaway County high school boys are to attend the American Legion Buckeye Boys' State in Ohio Wesleyan university in late June.

Boys' State is an annual Legion function held on the Delaware university campus to give high school juniors an insight of politics and government workings.

County representatives to this year's program are Danny Musser of Circleville high school; David Kraft of Ashville high school; and Paul Morris of Pickaway Township school.

Musser and Kraft are being sent to Boys' State by the Circleville American Legion, while Morris is being sent by Kingston American Legion.

Musser is the son of Mrs. Robert Musser of Northridge Road; Kraft is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Kraft of Ashville; and Morris is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Morris of Kingston Route 1.

Circleville Rotary Club has agreed to sponsor one of the lads being sent to the function by the Circleville Legion.

Wheel Chair Fund Is Filled

Although less than one-twentieth of Circleville's population was contacted, the fund to purchase a new wheel chair for Charles Harrison of East Franklin street had been oversubscribed Wednesday, according to Pickaway County Sheriff Charles Radcliff.

The idea of purchasing a chair to replace an old one used by Harrison was put forth by the sheriff several months ago. He found almost everyone willing to contribute, and made a trip to Columbus to buy it. The cost was $118.

Monday the sheriff started the collection sheet on its rounds. Tuesday it was heavily weighted with names. Wednesday there were still more, and a hasty audit revealed that it was $12.90 oversubscribed.

"The extra money will be given to Harrison," Radcliff said. He added that the subscription list contained 174 names—an average of about 75 cents each.

New Hollander Is Injured By Hit-Skip Driver

An 18-year-old New Holland youth was the victim of a hit-skip accident Wednesday night when he was struck by an auto on U. S. Route 22 a quarter of a mile west of Pickaway County line.

Hubert Green told Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputy Carl Radcliff he had been walking along the highway toward Washington C. H. when he saw "a 1935 or '36 sedan approaching, swerving from side to side."

Green, who said he was walking on the south side of the road, facing approaching traffic, attempted to jump out of the way, according to Radcliff. He was struck by the rear fender of the car, which roared away, the deputy added.

The youth was taken to Berger hospital where he was treated for a three-inch laceration under the left knee by Dr. V. D. Kerns, according to attendants there.

Witnesses notified the sheriff's office here of the accident, which occurred in Fayette County. Sheriff Charles Radcliff notified Fayette County Sheriff Orland Hays Thursday morning.

215 To Be Killed

CHICAGO, May 26—The National Safety Council today predicted a nationwide traffic death toll of 215 for the memorial Day weekend.

Welcome To Newcomers To Be Given Here

Something new is coming to Circleville—and it's all for newcomers, those newly-arrived "outsiders" who sometimes have difficulty in getting acquainted.

It is a new service, called the Welcome Wagon Service, and is designed to make new residents feel like old settlers.

Mrs. Harry C. Barton, of 229 Watt street, hostess for the new service, said the plan is expected to go into operation about the middle of June.

Under the sponsorship of local merchants and with the blessing of the Chamber of Commerce, Mrs. Barton will make calls on newcomers to the city and upon the mothers of new babies. Names probably will be obtained from lists maintained by public utility companies.

Small gifts and cards from merchants will be presented to the newcomers, Mrs. Barton explained. Cards, when presented to the merchant, will be exchanged for gifts. The gifts will depend upon the type of store represented.

"In New York, for instance," Mrs. Barton said, "One florist sent out little flower pots. When the person receiving it presented it in his shop, he produced a flower to be planted in it.

"Another merchant, a hardware store man, sent out small measuring spoons. When the newcomer called at the store the spoon was followed with a glass dish."

She said the cost to merchants will be set up according to classification. Amount and types will depend entirely upon each merchant.

Mrs. Barton has just returned from New York City, where she completed a course of instruction preparing her to represent the service as hostess in Circleville.

Welcome Wagon service was originated in 1928 by Thomas W. Briggs, a newspaperman of Memphis, Tenn., who adapted a custom of pioneer days to present day conditions.

A student of American history, Briggs was stirred by the romantic tales of the rugged men who blazed trails to new lands across western plains.

As the covered wagons of the pioneers lumbered toward the frontier, homesteaders from scattered settlements along the way met them in "welcome wagons" with food and water to refresh the travelers at the end of their long journey, and extended a hand of welcome.

The service to be represented here by Mrs. Barton already exists in more than 800 towns and cities throughout the United States and Canada, carrying the good wishes of civic and business organizations to 500,000 families—to mothers of new babies, teen-age girls, newly-engaged girls, those moving from one home to another within the community and to newcomers to the city.

In addition to carrying the gifts and good wishes of merchants, Mrs. Barton will pass along word of outstanding features of Circleville—its churches, libraries, banks, shops, restaurants, schools and services.

Communist loudspeakers blared to the Nationalist troops covering a government retreat to Woosung that the Communists could take the creek in two hours.

• • •

DESPITE THE presence of 10,000 battle-hardened veterans in Shanghai, the Communists have not tried to hurdle the creek.

The Communists claim to have cut the Shanghai-Woosung road north of the Kiangwan Airfield, to sever the Nationalist escape line to the sea by way of Woosung.

Reuters agency said that the Communists captured Woosung after crossing the Whangpoo at Kaochiao.

Machinegun and small arms fire crackled across a two square mile area along Soochow creek, which divides the northern and southern halves of Shanghai. The occasional crump of a Communist mortar was heard, but for the most part both sides observed a "gentleman's agreement" to spare the city of six million excessive damage.

Aside from the fighting at Soochow creek, the huge metropolis—richest prize to fall to the Chinese Communists yet — slowly struggled back to normal. South of the creek, trolley, and bus service has resumed, while gas, telephone and power services are continuing to function. Most shops are boarded up in the downtown area, but there has been neither panic nor looting.

JP Here Irked By Filing Of False Charges

An angry denunciation came from Circleville's Justice of the Peace Oscar Root Thursday morning. The justice paced the floor as he delivered his opinions.

Cause of the JP's disturbance was "the habit of people coming up here and swearing out affidavits containing charges that the evidence does not substantiate."

The magistrate said a case of that type came before him Wednesday night.

"The complainant had sworn out affidavits for peace warrants against three persons whom he charged with calling him names and threatening him.

"But when the case came to court, the evidence was lacking. The case was dismissed."

Root indicated he would adopt strong measures to prevent similar occurrances. He said offenders would be charged with contempt of court.

Lancaster Cop Pleads Innocent

LANCASTER, May 26—Lancaster Police Lt. Everett Brown voluntarily walked into the Fairfield County sheriff's office today to answer charges of extortion.

Brown, who appeared with his lawyer and a bondsman, immediately was arraigned before Justice Hollie B. Jones and released under $400 bond. He pleaded innocent to the charges.

Commie Chief Says Ohio Bill Will Force Reds 'Underground'

COLUMBUS, May 26—One of the nation's leading Communists warned today that his party would go underground if the Ohio legislature enacts a law barring reds from all public payrolls.

Arnold Johnson, national legislative director for the Communist Party, told the senate judiciary committee which is considering such a bill:

"I say to you—you force us underground, and it will not be to your advantage."

Sen. Carl Sheppard (R-Akron) demanded what Johnson meant by his "threat." Johnson responded that he had not meant his statement as a threat, but only as a statement that his organization would continue to function as a political party.

When Johnson insisted that "we don't advocate the overthrow of the government" Sheppard countered:

"Then this bill does not affect you."

The bill requires that all public employes, including teachers, sign a loyalty oath as a condition of employment. If they do not sign such an oath they may not be paid, and if they violate the oath they are subject to dismissal — and probably prosecution under other sections of the law dealing with perjury.

3 County Lads Selected For 'Boys' State'

Three Pickaway County high school boys are to attend the American Legion Buckeye Boys' State in Ohio Wesleyan university in late June.

Boys' State is an annual Legion function held on the Delaware university campus to give high school juniors an insight of politics and government workings.

County representatives to this year's program are Danny Musser of Circleville high school; David Kraft of Ashville high school; and Paul Morris of Pickaway Township school.

Musser and Kraft are being sent to Boys' State by the Circleville American Legion, while Morris is being sent by Kingston American Legion.

Musser is the son of Mrs. Robert Musser of Northridge Road; Kraft is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Kraft of Ashville; and Morris is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Morris of Kingston Route 1.

Circleville Rotary Club has agreed to sponsor one of the lads being sent to the function by the Circleville Legion.

Wheel Chair Fund Is Filled

Although less than one-twentieth of Circleville's population was contacted, the fund to purchase a new wheel chair for Charles Harrison of East Franklin street had been oversubscribed Wednesday, according to Pickaway County Sheriff Charles Radcliff.

The idea of purchasing a chair to replace an old one used by Harrison was put forth by the sheriff several months ago. He found almost everyone willing to contribute, and made a trip to Columbus to buy it. The cost was $118.

Monday the sheriff started the collection sheet on its rounds. Tuesday it was heavily weighted with names. Wednesday there were still more, and a hasty audit revealed that it was $12.90 oversubscribed.

"The extra money will be given to Harrison," Radcliff said. He added that the subscription list contained 174 names—an average of about 75 cents each.

New Hollander Is Injured By Hit-Skip Driver

An 18-year-old New Holland youth was the victim of a hit-skip accident Wednesday night when he was struck by an auto on U. S. Route 22 a quarter of a mile west of Pickaway County line.

Hubert Green told Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputy Carl Radcliff he had been walking along the highway toward Washington C. H. when he saw "a 1935 or '36 sedan approaching, swerving from side to side."

Green, who said he was walking on the south side of the road, facing approaching traffic, attempted to jump out of the way, according to Radcliff. He was struck by the rear fender of the car, which roared away, the deputy added.

The youth was taken to Berger hospital where he was treated for a three-inch laceration under the left knee by Dr. V. D. Kerns, according to attendants there.

Witnesses notified the sheriff's office here of the accident, which occurred in Fayette County. Sheriff Charles Radcliff notified Fayette County Sheriff Orland Hays Thursday morning.

215 To Be Killed

CHICAGO, May 26—The National Safety Council today predicted a nationwide traffic death toll of 215 for the memorial Day weekend.

Welcome To Newcomers To Be Given Here

Something new is coming to Circleville—and it's all for newcomers, those newly-arrived "outsiders" who sometimes have difficulty in getting acquainted.

It is a new service, called the Welcome Wagon Service, and is designed to make new residents feel like old settlers.

Mrs. Harry C. Barton, of 229 Watt street, hostess for the new service, said the plan is expected to go into operation about the middle of June.

Under the sponsorship of local merchants and with the blessing of the Chamber of Commerce, Mrs. Barton will make calls on newcomers to the city and upon the mothers of new babies. Names probably will be obtained from lists maintained by public utility companies.

Small gifts and cards from merchants will be presented to the newcomers, Mrs. Barton explained. Cards, when presented to the merchant, will be exchanged for gifts. The gifts will depend upon the type of store represented.

"In New York, for instance," Mrs. Barton said, "One florist sent out little flower pots. When the person receiving it presented it in his shop, he produced a flower to be planted in it.

"Another merchant, a hardware store man, sent out small measuring spoons. When the newcomer called at the store the spoon was followed with a glass dish."

She said the cost to merchants will be set up according to classification. Amount and types will depend entirely upon each merchant.

Mrs. Barton has just returned from New York City, where she completed a course of instruction preparing her to represent the service as hostess in Circleville.

Welcome Wagon service was originated in 1928 by Thomas W. Briggs, a newspaperman of Memphis, Tenn., who adapted a custom of pioneer days to present day conditions.

A student of American history, Briggs was stirred by the romantic tales of the rugged men who blazed trails to new lands across western plains.

As the covered wagons of the pioneers lumbered toward the frontier, homesteaders from scattered settlements along the way met them in "welcome wagons" with food and water to refresh the travelers at the end of their long journey, and extended a hand of welcome.

The service to be represented here by Mrs. Barton already exists in more than 800 towns and cities throughout the United States and Canada, carrying the good wishes of civic and business organizations to 500,000 families—to mothers of new babies, teen-age girls, newly-engaged girls, those moving from one home to another within the community and to newcomers to the city.

In addition to carrying the gifts and good wishes of merchants, Mrs. Barton will pass along word of outstanding features of Circleville—its churches, libraries, banks, shops, restaurants, schools and services.

K Of P Building Getting Roof Waterproofed

The drip, drip of rain drops on the roof is a pleasant sound to many people. But when the drips continue on to bounce off the floor inside, the routine grows a little tiresome.

At least that was the thought of Knights of Pythias when they instructed Louis H. Mebs, local contractor, to replace an old roof on their North Court street lodge building with a new one. Work started Wednesday.

According to R. S. Denman, trustee, the building was first constructed in 1892 and, while minor repairs have been made, this is the first time the roof has been replaced. Asbestos shingles are to replace the old slate tiles.

Denman said interior decoration of the building is to be undertaken later.

K Of P Building Getting Roof Waterproofed

The drip, drip of rain drops on the roof is a pleasant sound to many people. But when the drips continue on to bounce off the floor inside, the routine grows a little tiresome.

At least that was the thought of Knights of Pythias when they instructed Louis H. Mebs, local contractor, to replace an old roof on their North Court street lodge building with a new one. Work started Wednesday.

According to R. S. Denman, trustee, the building was first constructed in 1892 and, while minor repairs have been made, this is the first time the roof has been replaced. Asbestos shingles are to replace the old slate tiles.

Denman said interior decoration of the building is to be undertaken later.

2 Local Men Get Discharges

They are Lloyd A. Smith of 122 Hayward avenue, discharged from Fort Dix, N. J., as a recruit; and William A. Hill of 159 Hayward avenue, discharged as a recruit from Ft. Knox, Ky.

Auto Mishap Brings Suit

A $10,845 damage suit has been filed in Pickaway County common pleas court against a Circleville Route 2 man.

The suit was launched by Rosalie Turner of Walnut street, whose petition claims she was injured on Feb. 10, 1948, when the taxicab in which she was riding was struck from the rear by an auto driven by Carl Williams.

Her petition alleges her taxi had stopped for a red light at West Main street and Scioto street, and that Williams' car hit the rear of the cab, throwing her against the front seat.

The petition continues to state she suffered damages to the sum of $10,000, medical bills of $345 and hospital and surgical bills

"WAKE OF THE RED WITCH"

When you gotta stop —you wanta stop!

"It can stop on a dime," the salesman promised you, "—and leave nine cents change!"
And your Buick did—when it was new and brake linings unworn and everything factory-tight and fresh.
But brake linings wear—lights grow dim with time—tires can lose their bite and traction.
And with a whole summer's driving ahead, what better time than this to bring your Buick back to new-car peak in all those details that mean so much to safety?

Check your car--- Check accidents!
Three great service and safety organizations across the country are alerting car-owners everywhere this month on safety-checking their cars.
They list ten vital question marks for you to think about—How are your Brakes? Lights? Tires? Steering? Wheel alignment? Defective glass? Rear-view mirror? Muffler? Windshield wipers? Horn?
Be sure your family rides in safety—ask your Buick service man to look over these check-points this month—and join the great drive for driving safety!
Our men, trained in Buick ways, will give you brakes that stop you as Buicks should, with new brake linings that are right in size and brake drums turned to perfect round.
They can replace sealed-beam headlights to give you new-bulb brilliance—and while they're at it, check battery, voltage, wiring and headlamp-aim to boot.
They'll check tires, switch them as needed, look into wheel alignment for easy steering.
In a word, they'll renew your Buick with the same care and interest they would lavish on their own—and do it at no greater cost than for just ordinary service.
So drop in. Get set for some summer fun that's up to lively Buick standard.
Buick care keeps Buicks best

CATTLE PREFERRED TO PEOPLE

Arco, Idaho, Did Not Want To Grow Big, But It Will

ARCO, Ida., May 26—Arco, a quiet small town of about 600 population, had no desire nor hope to become a city. But residents feel a city is being thrust upon them.

Arco lies within five miles of the boundary of a huge, sprawling wasteland in Southern Idaho taken over by the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission for a reactor testing station.

Soon the West's oldest industry, cattle grazing, literally will mix with its newest—development of atomic energy.

First reaction was resentment. Stockmen preferred 12,000 cattle to 12,000 people.

But all are now reconciled. Stockmen learned that each reactor setup will be fenced into a plot of about 300 acres. These will be widely scattered over some 20 miles square.

* * *

NOT MORE than three will be completed by the end of 1950; possible ten will be built in the next ten years. Throughout the project's development and afterward, cattle will graze on a major portion of the area.

As for the town, it's going ahead with a long-range outlook, despite a sudden injection of excitement and "boom" atmosphere by the AEC's announcement.

AEC building will not start for months, but construction workers already are in Arco, and busy. They form a 25-trailer house adjunct to the once undisturbed village. Motor courts, cafes, bakeries, night clubs, residences are going up.

Real estate values have doubled in six weeks. Business lots which were $1,000 now are bringing $2,500. Residential lots have boomed in the same proportion.

The town's hotel three months ago could have been bought for $40,000. Owners have refused a $65,000 offer in fact, no Arco businesses have been sold. Owners are holding to their property and expanding.

* * *

BUT NEW businesses are coming in. Erection of a new hotel will start soon, to cost $400,000. It is being promoted by W. G. Grossman, of Pasco, Wash., another atomic energy-vitalized town of the West.

Two California businessmen bought a nearby ranch, levelled 80 acres and are plotting a huge housing project. Henry Moore, a rancher, retained a large track and is building a $10,000 home.

City leaders are directing the town's growth as much as possible. They don't want a "boom town."

Arco's first airfield, to cost $76,000, is under construction. Twenty acres were acquired from the state for a city park. Officials are surveying a sewage system and planning hospital facilities. Butte County is voting bonds to build a new high school.

Arco residents once looked upon the nearby Craters Of The Moon Park and surrounding lava beds as a fantastic and gruesome touch of nature.

Now they are convinced the area had a beneficial purpose—as the one and only site made to order for transforming nature's secrets into new power and strength to bring mankind wonderful wealth through atomic energy.

Bridges, 2 Aides, Are Cited In Perjury Case

SAN FRANCISCO, May 26—Harry Bridges, CIO Longshore Union chief, was expected to arrange today his surrender on federal charges that he perjured himself in denying Communist Party membership when he became an American citizen in 1945.

The Australian-born waterfront labor leader and two officials of his union were indicted by a federal grand jury of 23 members here yesterday.

They were accused of perjury and conspiracy to obstruct "the proper administration of the immigration and naturalization laws."

Morris Watson, spokesman for the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, said Bridges would leave New York this morning and return to San Francisco to answer what he called "the false charges."

Henry Schmidt, business agent of ILWU Local 10, and J. R. Robertson, first vice-president of the union, were named with Bridges in the indictment.

Schmidt surrendered to a U. S. marshal last night and was released on $5,000 bail in Honolulu, where he has been directing the ILWU Hawaiian waterfront strike. Robertson was expected to surrender here some time.

Two Heads Are Better Than One (Or None)

I get a kick out of buying stuff down at the hardware store. And I always ask for a little advice from one of the two brothers who run it, because I know beforehand exactly what the answer will be.

Like when I needed a new garden hose. "Henry," I says, "how about this new plastic hose—is it really as good as rubber?" "Well," he says, "I'm inclined to think it is—but you'd better ask Tom."

I found Tom in back and asks him the same question. "Well," says Tom, "in my opinion it is—but you'd better ask Henry." "I already have," I says, "and when you two cautious old codgers agree I'd bet my life on the decision."

From where I sit, your own opinion is worth a lot—but so's the other fellow's. That's why I keep saying, over and over, let's be tolerant of the other person's point of view—whether it's on politics or farming— or whether you like milk shakes and he prefers a temperate glass of beer.

CATTLE PREFERRED TO PEOPLE

Arco, Idaho, Did Not Want To Grow Big, But It Will

ARCO, Ida., May 26—Arco, a quiet small town of about 600 population, had no desire nor hope to become a city. But residents feel a city is being thrust upon them.

Arco lies within five miles of the boundary of a huge, sprawling wasteland in Southern Idaho taken over by the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission for a reactor testing station.

Soon the West's oldest industry, cattle grazing, literally will mix with its newest—development of atomic energy.

First reaction was resentment. Stockmen preferred 12,000 cattle to 12,000 people.

But all are now reconciled. Stockmen learned that each reactor setup will be fenced into a plot of about 300 acres. These will be widely scattered over some 20 miles square.

* * *

NOT MORE than three will be completed by the end of 1950; possible ten will be built in the next ten years. Throughout the project's development and afterward, cattle will graze on a major portion of the area.

As for the town, it's going ahead with a long-range outlook, despite a sudden injection of excitement and "boom" atmosphere by the AEC's announcement.

AEC building will not start for months, but construction workers already are in Arco, and busy. They form a 25-trailer house adjunct to the once undisturbed village. Motor courts, cafes, bakeries, night clubs, residences are going up.

Real estate values have doubled in six weeks. Business lots which were $1,000 now are bringing $2,500. Residential lots have boomed in the same proportion.

Asia Hopes Seen Key To Red Moves

Vishinsky Expected To Tip Stalin's Hand

PARIS, May 26 — Premier Joseph Stalin's intense preoccupation with Asia and his belief that Communism's future lies there was underscored heavily in the opening deliberations of the Big Four Council of Foreign Ministers here.

Secretary of State Dean Acheson, British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman thought that meticulous advance spadework had prepared them for any surprises that Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky might prevent.

But the unpredictable Russian delegate nevertheless caught the Western Allies off balance by his proposal that a peace treaty for Japan be discussed.

He fulfilled advance predictions for affability by dropping an original idea that Japan actually be placed on the Big Four agenda.

But he did pursue the proposal to the extent that America, Britain and France agreed to carry out "marginal discussion" of the Japanese peace question.

* * *

AND IT IS A foregone conclusion that if the Paris conferences does not break up in angry dispute as was the case in London in December, 1947, the Soviets will insist that the Big Four be restored to its original status of Big Five, with China represented on the board.

In one of his first public pronouncements after the end of the war, Stalin called upon Russia's 180 million of people to devote all their efforts and their energies to repairing the vast war damages in Western Russia so that his plans for Siberia could take effect.

He cited facts and figures to show how the Germans had destroyed all of Russia west of Moscow twice — once when they invaded and again when they retreated.

He did not have to add that the Soviets contributed to the desolation themselves by the "scorched earth" policy which Stalin ordered.

To achieve this aim, Stalin always has insisted that his western flank must be protected, and Vishinsky apparently has been ordered—for the present at least—to achieve this by peaceful means. Then Russian eyes will turn to the east. What the eventual result will be, no one can foretell.

Booster Club Directors Plan Special Parley

Circleville Booster Club's board of directors is to hold a special meeting Thursday evening with two important business matters topping the agenda.

John Heiskell, president of the club, said the directors were to check over a proposed slate of officers for the annual election to be held next month.

The slate has been prepared by the club's nominating committee.

Although Heiskell was noncommittal on the subject, it also was understood that the directors would discuss the possibility of sponsoring two candidates for Circleville board of education, subject to next November's general election.

Two terms on the board—those of President Carl Leist and Mrs. Howard Moore—expire with the current year and will be filled in the November poll.

Trucker Held In Mishap Death

CINCINNATI, May 26 — William Koester, 51, was killed yesterday when his motorcycle crashed into the side of a truck at a Cincinnati street intersection.

Truck Driver Elmer Deddens, 34, of Covington, Ky., was held for failure to yield right-of-way at a stop sign. Deddens was turning left at the intersection when Koester apparently pulled around a second truck which had been behind Deddens' mobile cement mixer.

WORKING AND TALKING

HIGH government officials talk too much and listen too little, says James K. Vardaman, member of the Federal Reserve Board. Breaking a self-imposed political silence of two years, Mr. Vardaman made this declaration during a recent speech in Kansas City before the Missouri Bankers Association.

"We non-elective office-holders outside the cabinet should quit trying to tell the people what we think they need, and what we think they should do, and how we think they should run their business," said Mr. Vardaman. He advocated listening to the voice of the people rather than to the sound of one's own voice. The opinion of this official is that only elected officers are privileged to interpret the wishes of the populace, while those holding appointive positions should quietly carry out orders.

More action and less talk might be fruitful of good result in other situations besides those of government officials. There always are people who will talk at the drop of a hat. The silent ones are over-shadowed by their articulate brethren who are never at a loss for words. Both kinds have their place. The silent people get most of the work done, while the talkative ones are likely to shape the policy which directs the work. Maybe Mr. Vardaman is right, and policy might be better if some of the makers of it would talk less and listen more.

POET OF ALL TRADES

THE interesting career of Archibald MacLeish has taken a new turn. He has become a professor of English literature at Harvard University, succeeding the gifted poet Theodore Spencer, who died suddenly not long ago. In his new post MacLeish's duty will be to instil in the undergraduates a love of good literature, particularly of poetry. If anyone can do that, he can.

MacLeish's career has been highly varied. He enlisted as a private in the First World War, coming out with the rank of captain. He then turned to his major love, poetry, which he gives as his profession in "Who's Who in America." During the war he was librarian of Congress, director of the Office of Facts and Figures, assistant director of the Office of War Information, and assistant secretary of state. He helped to create UNESCO, the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, and was its first chairman.

Such a varied history proves that MacLeish is no closet poet. His full life ought to give power to his appeals for the study and enjoyment of great literature.

IT IS HARD to get on the track of spies, says the special federal grand jury which has been sitting in New York, "when witnesses have been alerted by publicized charges and counter-charges." This seems like a direct blow at amateur investigations.

These Days

The psychiatrists called it a difficult 30 days ahead and they felt that after that period James Forrestal would have been able to leave the hospital cured of his "occupational fatigue." It is precisely at such moment that those temporarily broken in mind and spirit play at being God. The permanently twisted play at being God or the devil all the time—and unfortunately too few of such are under restraint. They make the master errors of history that cost generations their happiness.

It is precisely at the moment of cure of the temporarily disabled, I am told, that suicide's guile prompts the question: "Is it worth-while to face again the horrors of a life that has once been publicly shattered? Can I face my friends, my associates, my children?"

The man of God has God's answer to all such questions, for he who had not made life cannot take it away. The suicide is not a coward; he is almost arrogant in the positiveness and finality with which he acts on his own decision.

No one but a poltroon would think of Forrestal as a coward, and I was shocked to read a so-called liberal columnist refer to him as an alcoholic. There are apparently no limits to a liberal's capacity for imaginative rummaging in the private lives of those whom he seeks to destroy. Forrestal was a man of great physical daring; he was moderate, almost ascetic in his personal life. He wore himself out in the service of his country, laboring every day for nine years, that is, literally seven days a week, and most of the hours of each day, neglecting his family, weakening his resistance—in the end, destroying himself. He took a public trust too seriously, perhaps; but it cannot be said of him that he failed in his work or deserted his trust. It cannot be said that he was a physical or moral coward. It can be said that he did too much in a cause.

We, as a people, are merciless with our public officials. We wear them out. We demand of them herculean tasks and afford them little compensation in money, in honors, in those dignities of person which are often more valued than wages. We ignore their virtues and speak only of their errors of judgment or acts. Selecting our own governments, we choose only too often the least capable men and then expect of them such wonders as they cannot perform. When so able a man as Forrestal agrees to serve us, we tear him apart, rejecting his competent counsel and forcing upon him the indignity of defending his motives. We throw him to the wolves of partisan politics and subject him to the caprices of politicians who enjoy office more than honor, and the 'game,' as they call it, more than the truth. We batter our best men and praise only those who possess charm and who can smile like a movie actor on demonstration. Our gratitude is not for the constructive minds and personalities; our praise is for him who is most sensational and who out-promises his competitors for public applause.

There is no national dynamics in that, no national strength, no enduring greatness. For what we say to the competent is that the incompetent are just as worthy, and more so if they can amuse. Our officials waste the little strength and the few precious years that God has given any of us in appeasing their opponents and in winning public favor, when they should be permitted to work at their tasks with unabated fervor.

Forrestal, in my memory, will never be one who committed suicide. He was killed in service. He died a hero and a martyr.

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT

FOR AN HOUR Seton Alessandro had sat in Jasper Fogg's cubby-hole of an office on Tumblerock's main street, and that hour had filled him with an impatience that had become almost agony. The swivel chair was hard and apparently designed to break a man's back; the room itself was stifling, and Alessandro wished now that he'd waited in his cool town house on the crest above. Taking a short turn about the room, he wondered if he could show himself at the inquest and see how the proceedings were coming; but when he stepped to the office doorway, he saw the big dancehall disgorging the crowd. With a sigh, Alessandro went back to the chair.

Fogg was slow in coming. At last the lawyer shuffled into the office, plopped upon a straight-backed chair and mopped his round, pink face with a handkerchief. His string tie was askew, his baggy, black suit looked as though he'd slept in it, and the lawyer himself had a beaten, jaded air about him. Alessandro frowned and said, "Well—?"

"It's over, Seton," Fogg announced. "Piute and that other cutthroat spoke their pieces like proper Poll-parrots. It did the trick. Rayburn's being held for trial."

"How did Rayburn take it?"

"He asked about you, and he made a little speech," Fogg said, and proceeded to relate it.

A great, good humor began to take the stiffness out of Alessandro, and he said, "Fine, Fogg. Fine. You're a good man at your work when you put your mind to it. Now I've got Rayburn where I want him!"

"I'm damned if I see how," Fogg countered, a sharp note of exasperation in his voice. "This affair is bound to come to the attention of Helena, especially when Rayburn goes on trial for killing the governor's man. Perjured witnesses will hang Rayburn; but the other Forlorners will still be pardoned, and you'll have lost in the long run, Seton. Is the satisfaction you'll get out of destroying Rayburn worth that?"

Alessandro said, "My luck's running high again. Look out there on the street, Fogg, and see who's ridden into town. Hail him over here, will you?"

Across the way, Tate Strunk was just swinging from a saddle, his thick shoulders sagging with weariness. From the doorway Fogg called softly and beckoned with a quick genture of one pudgy hand. When the prison guard came across the street and framed himself in the entrance to the office, Alessandro said, "Where the devil have you been keeping yourself the last couple of days?"

Frustration had put Strunk in a bitter frame of mind; the proof of it was in the tightness of his mouth. "I tangled my twine somehow," he confessed. "That last night, I waited below the pass into Forlorn, sure that Hailiday and McAllister would come by. But the only thing that moved along the trail was a freight wagon. Since then, I've been riding in circles, looking for sign. I've seen enough hill country to do me a lifetime. I tell you, those two have vanished as completely as a lot of others who headed into these cussed Tumblerocks."

Alessandro smiled faintly. "It may interest you to know that the freight wagon you let pass by you was carrying your flown birds. But never mind. Things have happened while you've been holding communion with nature, Strunk. Sam McAllister is back in the Tumblerock jail, and Clark Rayburn is locked up with him—charged with the murder of Justin St. John."

That spread a show of surprise across Strunk's face. "I don't get it," he said. "What's happened?"

"The details aren't important," Alessandro said. "There's a new job for you, Strunk—a bigger and better job with pay that will put you on plush. Are you interested?"

Strunk said, "Keep on talking, mister!"

"Rayburn and McAllister will be in separate cells tonight. I'll talk to Sheriff Busby and arrange that. By dusk, Busby will be busy elsewhere. You will go into the jail, help yourself to the keys and let Rayburn out of his cell, Strunk. Tell him any kind of story that suits your fancy; he doesn't know you, and he probably won't look a gift horse too closely in the mouth. You might say that you ran into that school teacher, Hope Brennan, and she bribed you into freeing Rayburn. She happens to be his daughter. In any case, you get him out of jail."

Strunk nodded slowly. "And then—?"

"Head him toward Forlorn and ride far enough along with him to make sure he goes back to the valley."

"What about McAllister?"

"He isn't so important now; once I wanted him dead so that he wouldn't give a certain piece of information to Rayburn. But perhaps he's already done that. Then again, perhaps he hasn't. I have it! After you've freed Rayburn and started him north, slip back to the jail. Shooting McAllister will be like spearing a fish in a rain-barrel. It's too cheap a chance to throw away."

Strunk said, "I understand." Hesitation tied his tongue for a moment, then he added, "You spoke of a good pay-off for a job this size."

Alessandro dipped into a pocket, produced a roll of currency and tossed it to Strunk without examining it. "Get out of here now," Alessandro said. "I don't want people seeing us together."

Strunk gone, Alessandro smiled at Fogg. "Now do you grasp the idea?" he said. "I'd planned to use Piute for the job, but Strunk makes a better man, seeing as Rayburn knows Piute and would be suspicious. Besides, if anything goes wrong, there's no connection between Strunk and myself. But nothing must go wrong. Rayburn returns to the valley an outlaw; after his taste of the inquest, he'll know he'd stand no chance at the trial. If he's sensible, he stays holed up in the valley. And if the governor tries to root him out, I'm banking that the Forlorners will protect him. Our little outlaw sanctuary stays outlaw, Fogg."

Jasper Fogg had the nauseated look of a man who'd tasted a bitter brew. "I think," he said slowly, "that I shall get very drunk today."

Alessandro let him shuffle out of the office, then smiled to himself, a man who'd moved his pawns to their proper places on the board and had only to wait now for the inevitable completion of a carefully calculated play. He came to a stand, ready to leave for his house on the hill, but Piute stepped quietly into the office, making a display of his yellowish teeth in a caricature of a smile. "Howdy, boss," he said. "I'm heading out to the ranch now."

Alessandro nodded. "Fogg tells me you did a good job at the inquest."

"I've been thinking about that," Piute said. "Perjury carries a stiff stretch in stony lonesome—even perjury at an inquest. Sometimes a man is asked to do queer things for the pay he gets."

Alessandro said, "I know. I know. You've got a bonus coming." He felt in his pocket and remembered the roll he'd given Strunk. "I've no money with me now."

"Not even a little for the time being?"

Frowning, Alessandro knelt before Fogg's safe and spun the dial. "Wait a minute," he said.

There was a sheaf of currency inside the safe; Alessandro counted off some bills and passed them to Piute. The new foreman's boots were beating a departure down the boardwalk when Alessandro thrust the rest of the money back into the safe, but in doing so he dislodged a pile of papers which spilled to the floor. Gathering them, Alessandro was restoring the papers to their former place when he noticed the thick envelope which bore the name of the governor of Montana.

Swinging the safe's door shut, Alessandro came erect, that letter in his hand. His thin lips were drawn to a taut line as he slipped his thumb under the flap of the envelope...

ONE MAN'S OPINION

The foreign ministers conference opened in a friendly atmosphere. In fact Britain, France and the USA had already agreed to cooperate with Russia in every way and give Vishinsky nothing.

And Vishinsky came prepared to yield on any controversial point which doesn't interest him.

But all four agreed that the United Nations is a splendid thing while holding their rump session 3,000 miles outside it's halls.

Meanwhile a one-tenth of one percent rise in the cost of living passed unnoticed. A man who has been hit by a freight train doesn't notice the bite of a gnat.

But Mr. Truman got a 10-pound salmon from Maine and saved the price of one fish course. . .unless it put him in a higher tax bracket.

That's a nice thing about the people of Maine. They give their electoral votes to a Republican but they're always willing to throw a fish to a Democrat.

For many years the theatrical weekly, Variety, has been famous for its terse, jargonistic headlines. When small-town movie exhibitors turned thumbs-down on rural subjects, Variety headlined "Stix Nix Hix Pix."

It seems that a New York tabloid, however, has decided to give Variety headline writers a run for their money. Its captions

Was Blockade of Berlin Just a Stupendous Hoax? | Southern Mine Owners Ponder Lewis Invitation

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Some diplomatic quarters in Washington are beginning to suspect that the United States, France and Britain have fallen victim to one of the biggest hoaxes perpetrated since the days of Helen of Troy.

They are not looking around for any wooden horses, but they think this hoax lies in Russia's blockade of Berlin and the subsequent efforts by the democracies to fly food and goods into the blockaded city with large numbers of aircraft.

John L. Lewis

While attention has been focused on the "cold war"—with Berlin as its core—Chinese Reds, reinforced with equipment and manpower from Russia, have swept over China and are entrenched on the Pacific coast.

This means Russia now has bases opposite Japan and Gen. Douglas MacArthur's forces.

If shelling of British gunboats by the Reds is any indication of what lies ahead, there may be trouble brewing for western democracies in the not-too-distant future.

Disturbed as they are by the prospects—and the past—the Washington authorities are undecided on what can be done now that the Nationalist regime of Chiang Kai-shek is at an end.

However, in their minds is the dark suspicion that the Berlin blockade has served its purpose.

* * * *

● LEWIS HAS THE BALL AGAIN—Meanwhile, in another field of "diplomatic relations," UMW chief John L. Lewis once more has the soft coal operators up in the air. They are divided and uncertain what to do next in the annual battle over a new coal contract.

Southern coal producers suspect that Lewis' courteous invitation to them to negotiate a new agreement in a conference at Bluefield, W. Va., beginning June 6, is some kind of a trap that the wily union chief will spring at the proper time.

The southerners fear Lewis will get them down there in the mountains, leave them to cool their heels and return to Washington to do his real negotiating with northern and western mine owners.

Yet they dare not ignore Lewis' invitation. The UMW president would blast the daylights out of the southern operators for refusing to bargain if they spurned his Bluefield proposal.

The situation is made more complicated by the fact that Lewis has had no communications at all with the northern and western producers. They're worried that he might leave them out on a limb while he bargains seriously with the south.

No matter what the operators' desire in the annual coal wage negotiations, it is Lewis who calls the play.

* * * *

● IRONY!—President Truman may some day thank the Congress he called "one of the worst" in the nation's history for boosting his income.

This strange twist stems from a bill passed by the Republican 80th Congress and signed by Mr. Truman which guarantees the chief executive a lifetime income of $82.50 per month under present military pay scales.

$82.50 Per Month For Mr. Truman?

The measure establishes a system of non-disability retirement for members of the civilian military components who complete 20 years of service.

Mr. Truman is eligible for the benefits because he has completed a total of 30 years' service as a colonel in the United States Artillery Reserve Corps.

Under present law, the president cannot draw the Army retirement pay until he leaves the White House, but there is nothing to prevent him from getting it later.

The president's benefits would figure out to $82.50 a month on the basis of a colonel's pay with 30 years longevity. Of course, there's no way of knowing now whether Mr. Truman will ask for or accept the retirement pay.

There are apparently no limits to a liberal's capacity for imaginative rummaging in the private lives of those whom he seeks to destroy. Forrestal was a man of great physical daring; he was moderate, almost ascetic in his personal life. He wore himself out in the service of his country, laboring every day for nine years, that is, literally seven days a week, and most of the hours of each day, neglecting his family, weakening his resistance—in the end, destroying himself. He took a public trust too seriously, perhaps; but it cannot be said of him that he failed in his work or deserted his trust. It cannot be said that he was a physical or moral coward. It can be said that he did too much in a cause.

We, as a people, are merciless with our public officials. We wear them out. We demand of them herculean tasks and afford them little compensation in money, in honors, in those dignities of person which are often more valued than wages. We ignore their virtues and speak only of their errors of judgment or acts. Selecting our own governments, we choose only too often the least capable men and then expect of them such wonders as they cannot perform. When so able a man as Forrestal agrees to serve us, we tear him apart, rejecting his competent counsel and forcing upon him the indignity of defending his motives. We throw him to the wolves of partisan politics and subject him to the caprices of politicians who enjoy office more than honor, and the 'game,' as they call it, more than the truth. We batter our best men and praise only those who possess charm and who can smile like a movie actor on demonstration. Our gratitude is not for the constructive minds and personalities; our praise is for him who is most sensational and who out-promises his competitors for public applause.

There is no national dynamics in that, no national strength, no enduring greatness. For what we say to the competent is that the incompetent are just as worthy, and more so if they can amuse. Our officials waste the little strength and the few precious years that God has given any of us in appeasing their opponents and in winning public favor, when they should be permitted to work at their tasks with unabated fervor.

Forrestal, in my memory, will never be one who committed suicide. He was killed in service. He died a hero and a martyr.

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT

FOR AN HOUR Seton Alessandro had sat in Jasper Fogg's cubby-hole of an office on Tumblerock's main street, and that hour had filled him with an impatience that had become almost agony. The swivel chair was hard and apparently designed to break a man's back; the room itself was stifling, and Alessandro wished now that he'd waited in his cool town house on the crest above. Taking a short turn about the room, he wondered if he could show himself at the inquest and see how the proceedings were coming; but when he stepped to the office doorway, he saw the big dancehall disgorging the crowd. With a sigh, Alessandro went back to the chair.

Fogg was slow in coming. At last the lawyer shuffled into the office, plopped upon a straight-backed chair and mopped his round, pink face with a handkerchief. His string tie was askew, his baggy, black suit looked as though he'd slept in it, and the lawyer himself had a beaten, jaded air about him. Alessandro frowned and said, "Well—?"

"It's over, Seton," Fogg announced. "Piute and that other cutthroat spoke their pieces like proper Poll-parrots. It did the trick. Rayburn's being held for trial."

"How did Rayburn take it?"

"He asked about you, and he made a little speech," Fogg said, and proceeded to relate it.

A great, good humor began to take the stiffness out of Alessandro, and he said, "Fine, Fogg. Fine. You're a good man at your work when you put your mind to it. Now I've got Rayburn where I want him!"

"I'm damned if I see how," Fogg countered, a sharp note of exasperation in his voice. "This affair is bound to come to the attention of Helena, especially when Rayburn goes on trial for killing the governor's man. Perjured witnesses will hang Rayburn; but the other Forlorners will still be pardoned, and you'll have lost in the long run, Seton. Is the satisfaction you'll get out of destroying Rayburn worth that?"

Alessandro said, "My luck's running high again. Look out there on the street, Fogg, and see who's ridden into town. Hail him over here, will you?"

Across the way, Tate Strunk was just swinging from a saddle, his thick shoulders sagging with weariness. From the doorway Fogg called softly and beckoned with a quick genture of one pudgy hand. When the prison guard came across the street and framed himself in the entrance to the office, Alessandro said, "Where the devil have you been keeping yourself the last couple of days?"

Frustration had put Strunk in a bitter frame of mind; the proof of it was in the tightness of his mouth. "I tangled my twine somehow," he confessed. "That last night, I waited below the pass into Forlorn, sure that Hailiday and McAllister would come by. But the only thing that moved along the trail was a freight wagon. Since then, I've been riding in circles, looking for sign. I've seen enough hill country to do me a lifetime. I tell you, those two have vanished as completely as a lot of others who headed into these cussed Tumblerocks."

Alessandro smiled faintly. "It may interest you to know that the freight wagon you let pass by you was carrying your flown birds. But never mind. Things have happened while you've been holding communion with nature, Strunk. Sam McAllister is back in the Tumblerock jail, and Clark Rayburn is locked up with him—charged with the murder of Justin St. John."

That spread a show of surprise across Strunk's face. "I don't get it," he said. "What's happened?"

"The details aren't important," Alessandro said. "There's a new job for you, Strunk—a bigger and better job with pay that will put you on plush. Are you interested?"

Strunk said, "Keep on talking, mister!"

"Rayburn and McAllister will be in separate cells tonight. I'll talk to Sheriff Busby and arrange that. By dusk, Busby will be busy elsewhere. You will go into the jail, help yourself to the keys and let Rayburn out of his cell, Strunk. Tell him any kind of story that suits your fancy; he doesn't know you, and he probably won't look a gift horse too closely in the mouth. You might say that you ran into that school teacher, Hope Brennan, and she bribed you into freeing Rayburn. She happens to be his daughter. In any case, you get him out of jail."

Strunk nodded slowly. "And then—?"

"Head him toward Forlorn and ride far enough along with him to make sure he goes back to the valley."

"What about McAllister?"

"He isn't so important now; once I wanted him dead so that he wouldn't give a certain piece of information to Rayburn. But perhaps he's already done that. Then again, perhaps he hasn't. I have it! After you've freed Rayburn and started him north, slip back to the jail. Shooting McAllister will be like spearing a fish in a rain-barrel. It's too cheap a chance to throw away."

Strunk said, "I understand." Hesitation tied his tongue for a moment, then he added, "You spoke of a good pay-off for a job this size."

Alessandro dipped into a pocket, produced a roll of currency and tossed it to Strunk without examining it. "Get out of here now," Alessandro said. "I don't want people seeing us together."

Strunk gone, Alessandro smiled at Fogg. "Now do you grasp the idea?" he said. "I'd planned to use Piute for the job, but Strunk makes a better man, seeing as Rayburn knows Piute and would be suspicious. Besides, if anything goes wrong, there's no connection between Strunk and myself. But nothing must go wrong. Rayburn returns to the valley an outlaw; after his taste of the inquest, he'll know he'd stand no chance at the trial. If he's sensible, he stays holed up in the valley. And if the governor tries to root him out, I'm banking that the Forlorners will protect him. Our little outlaw sanctuary stays outlaw, Fogg."

Jasper Fogg had the nauseated look of a man who'd tasted a bitter brew. "I think," he said slowly, "that I shall get very drunk today."

Alessandro let him shuffle out of the office, then smiled to himself, a man who'd moved his pawns to their proper places on the board and had only to wait now for the inevitable completion of a carefully calculated play. He came to a stand, ready to leave for his house on the hill, but Piute stepped quietly into the office, making a display of his yellowish teeth in a caricature of a smile. "Howdy, boss," he said. "I'm heading out to the ranch now."

Alessandro nodded. "Fogg tells me you did a good job at the inquest."

"I've been thinking about that," Piute said. "Perjury carries a stiff stretch in stony lonesome—even perjury at an inquest. Sometimes a man is asked to do queer things for the pay he gets."

Alessandro said, "I know. I know. You've got a bonus coming." He felt in his pocket and remembered the roll he'd given Strunk. "I've no money with me now."

"Not even a little for the time being?"

Frowning, Alessandro knelt before Fogg's safe and spun the dial. "Wait a minute," he said.

There was a sheaf of currency inside the safe; Alessandro counted off some bills and passed them to Piute. The new foreman's boots were beating a departure down the boardwalk when Alessandro thrust the rest of the money back into the safe, but in doing so he dislodged a pile of papers which spilled to the floor. Gathering them, Alessandro was restoring the papers to their former place when he noticed the thick envelope which bore the name of the governor of Montana.

Swinging the safe's door shut, Alessandro came erect, that letter in his hand. His thin lips were drawn to a taut line as he slipped his thumb under the flap of the envelope...

ONE MAN'S OPINION

The foreign ministers conference opened in a friendly atmosphere. In fact Britain, France and the USA had already agreed to cooperate with Russia in every way and give Vishinsky nothing.

And Vishinsky came prepared to yield on any controversial point which doesn't interest him.

But all four agreed that the United Nations is a splendid thing while holding their rump session 3,000 miles outside it's halls.

Meanwhile a one-tenth of one percent rise in the cost of living passed unnoticed. A man who has been hit by a freight train doesn't notice the bite of a gnat.

But Mr. Truman got a 10-pound salmon from Maine and saved the price of one fish course. . .unless it put him in a higher tax bracket.

That's a nice thing about the people of Maine. They give their electoral votes to a Republican but they're always willing to throw a fish to a Democrat.

For many years the theatrical weekly, Variety, has been famous for its terse, jargonistic headlines. When the stock market crashed in 1929, for instance, Variety's front-page banner read "Wall Street Lays an Egg." When a raging blizzard cut Buffalo's theater receipts in half one week, Variety summed up the situation, "Bliz Boffs Buff Biz." When small-town movie exhibitors turned thumbs-down on rural subjects, Variety headlined "Stix Nix Hix Pix."

It seems that a New York tabloid, however, has decided to give Variety headline writers a run for their money. Its captions

Was Blockade of Berlin Just a Stupendous Hoax?

Southern Mine Owners Ponder Lewis Invitation

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Some diplomatic quarters in Washington are beginning to suspect that the United States, France and Britain have fallen victim to one of the biggest hoaxes perpetrated since the days of Helen of Troy.

They are not looking around for any wooden horses, but they think this hoax lies in Russia's blockade of Berlin and the subsequent efforts by the democracies to fly food and goods into the blockaded city with large numbers of aircraft.

John L. Lewis

While attention has been focused on the "cold war"—with Berlin as its core—Chinese Reds, reinforced with equipment and manpower from Russia, have swept over China and are entrenched on the Pacific coast.

This means Russia now has bases opposite Japan and Gen Douglas MacArthur's forces.

If shelling of British gunboats by the Reds is any indication of what lies ahead, there may be trouble brewing for western democracies in the not-too-distant future.

Disturbed as they are by the prospects—and the past—the Washington authorities are undecided on what can be done now that the Nationalist regime of Chiang Kai-shek is at an end.

However, in their minds is the dark suspicion that the Berlin blockade has served its purpose.

• • • •

● LEWIS HAS THE BALL AGAIN—Meanwhile, in another field of "diplomatic relations," UMW chief John L. Lewis once more has the soft coal operators up in the air. They are divided and uncertain what to do next in the annual battle over a new coal contract.

Southern coal producers suspect that Lewis' courteous invitation to them to negotiate a new agreement in a conference at Bluefield, W. Va., beginning June 6, is some kind of a trap that the wily union chief will spring at the proper time.

The southerners fear Lewis will get them down there in the mountains, leave them to cool their heels and return to Washington to do his real negotiating with northern and western mine owners.

Yet they dare not ignore Lewis' invitation. The UMW president would blast the daylights out of the southern operators for refusing to bargain if they spurned his Bluefield proposal.

The situation is made more complicated by the fact that Lewis has had no communications at all with the northern and western producers. They're worried that he might leave them out on a limb while he bargains seriously with the south.

No matter what the operators' desire in the annual coal wage negotiations, it is Lewis who calls the play.

• • • •

● IRONY!—President Truman may some day thank the Congress he called "one of the worst" in the nation's history for boosting his income.

This strange twist stems from a bill passed by the Republican 80th Congress and signed by Mr. Truman which guarantees the chief executive a lifetime income of $82.50 per month under present military pay scales.

$82.50 Per Month For Mr. Truman?

The measure establishes a system of non-disability retirement for members of the civilian military components who complete 20 years of service.

Mr. Truman is eligible for the benefits because he has completed a total of 30 years' service as a colonel in the United States Artillery Reserve Corps.

Under present law, the president cannot draw the Army retirement pay until he leaves the White House, but there is nothing to prevent him from getting it later.

The president's benefits would figure out to $82.50 a month on the basis of a colonel's pay with 30 years longevity. Of course, there's no way of knowing now whether Mr. Truman will ask for or accept the retirement pay.

U.S. Child Labor Laws Are Detailed

Minimum Age Is 16 For Nearly All Jobs

CLEVELAND, May 26—With thousands of Ohio school children seeking vacation jobs, William S. Singley, regional director of the wage and hour and public contracts divisions, U. S. Department of Labor, today urged employers to comply with federal and state laws regulating child labor.

The divisions are charged with the enforcement of two federal laws, the Fair Labor Standards Act and the Walsh-Healey Public Contracts Act, both of which have provisions regulating the employment of children.

Briefly summing up child labor provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act, Singley emphasized that the minimum age for most jobs is 16, but for occupations declared to be particularly hazardous, it is 18.

"The minimum age of 18 applies to most occupations in explosive plants, coal mining, logging and sawmilling, operation of power-driven wood-cutting machines, use of radio active substances, operation of power driven hoisting machines and serving as drivers or drivers' helpers on motor vehicles," he said.

* * *

"CHILDREN UNDER 16 may be employed in a limited number of jobs but only then under certain specified conditions. For example, under the Fair Labor Standards Act, children under 16 may not work in a manufacturing workroom even though they are not employed in actual manufacturing operations."

Singley pointed out that the Fair Labor Standards Act prohibits the shipment or delivery for shipment in interstate commerce of goods produced in an establishment in or about which within 30 days of such shipment any oppressive child labor was employed.

He defined oppressive child labor as the employment of children under the minimum age set for various types of work under the law.

Singley advised employers to have on file age certificates or work permits for all workers under 19, because under federal law such certificates and permits are considered as proof of age, and serve to protect employers against unwitting violations.

He also advised them to check on both federal and state regulations, for their protection as well as for the protection of their child workers.

WASHINGTON, May 26—Bankers of this country, without exception in so far as I know, are wholeheartedly behind the forthcoming Opportunity Savings Bond Drive. Two of the many reasons why bankers support the plan, are the safety of the investment to the individual, and the advantage which accrues to the country and to our economy by having the national debt as widely distributed as possible. There are $47 billion in the hands of the people today. It is an all-time high and an excellent stabilizing influence for our national economy.

Retail Business Holding Better Than Last Year

Business in Pickaway County for the week ending May 15 was better than for the same period in 1948, according to a report of sales tax stamps sold here. Total collections for the year up to that date also showed an increase over the 1948 figure.

State Treasurer Don Ebright reported $4,867 in sales tax stamps collected for the week ending May 15, while for the corresponding week in 1948 the figure was $4,319.07. Total collections for 1949 were listed at $74,653.11, and at $74,341.75 for the previous year.

Automotive supplies were still heading the list throughout the state with $711,829.81 in tax stamps sold during the week. During the same period in 1948 the figure listed was $516,745.67.

All other industry classifications during the week ending May 15 failed to reach the mark set during the corresponding period in 1948.

Woman Wins Odd Suit

DAYTON, May 26 — Mrs. Elizabeth Ernst of New Lebanon was to receive $5,000 today in a breach of one of the most unusual contracts ever to appear in Montgomery County courts.

Mrs. Ernst, married in 1905 and the mother of eight children, told the court Mrs. Ada B. Wise, 55, of Dayton, agreed in a 1947 contract to let her husband alone.

Mrs. Ernst said she promised in return, not to file an alienation of affections suit against Mrs. Wise. Two private detectives testified they had seen Mrs. Wise with the husband, Urban B. Ernst, since the time the contract was made. Mrs. Wise admitted signing the contract, but denied breaking it.

Sleeping Sickness Is Cited

Horses And Mules Facing Disease

Sleeping sickness may take a staggering toll of America's horse and mule population this Summer and Fall unless animals are protected before the season of hot weather and biting insects.

This was the warning issued Thursday by Larry Best, Pickaway County agricultural agent.

Losses from sleeping sickness in 1947 and 1948 showed a startling increase in nearly every section of the country, due both to a greater number of cases and 69 percent mortality rate, the agent pointed out.

As a result, the virus of this disease may have "wintered over" with more virulence and in more places than has been the case in many years. The virus lives from year to year in various hosts, including mites and birds.

TO GUARD AGAINST losses in 1949, horse owners were advised to practice four precautions:

(1) If sleeping sickness has been a problem in the area, have horses and mules vaccinated before the insect season; (2) drain swampy areas where mosquitoes breed; (3) spray the premises with a strong insecticide; and (4) isolate any animal that shows suspicious symptoms, and get a veterinary diagnosis at once.

Symptoms of equine sleeping sickness include drowsiness, fever, difficulty in chewing and swallowing, and wobbly gait.

15 MILLION YANKS AFFECTED NOW

More Aid To Curb Deafness Being Urged By New Yorker

NEW YORK, May 26—Fifteen million Americans suffer some degree of hearing impairment or deafness.

This is a greater total of men, women and children than suffer from the combined ravages of heart disease, tuberculosis, cancer and infantile paralysis in the United States.

Of this alarming number, three million are children, of whom the great majority could be completely cured if the impairment were detected and treated in time.

This latter statistic has so appalled a young New York businessman, the father of two small daughters, that he has started a one-man crusade to conserve the hearing of America's children.

He is Irving I. Schachtel, president of the American Hearing Aid Association.

Schachtel, trained originally as a social worker before he turned to law and industry, is busy now writing a pamphlet on "conserving our children's hearing."

* * *

THE COMMON cold, the villain of so many unsung tragedies, is the chief cause of hearing impairment in young children, Schachtel says. Childhood diseases just as aednoids, tonsils, mastoid, scarlet fever, whooping cough, diptheria, mumps and measles also take a heavy toll.

The pamphlet is to be based on a nationwide survey just completed by Schachtel to discover what each of the 48 states is doing to conserve the hearing of its children.

The answer he says, can be summed up in two words: "Mighty little." Or two more: "Not enough."

Only five million of the nation's 50 million children (persons under 18 years of age) receive annual hearing tests. Not one of the 48 states has a complete program to detect and treat deafness in youngsters.

Only 15 states require annual child hearing tests. Another six have regulations requiring such tests only under certain conditions. Three states require a biennial hearing test for children.

Although the ear is especially sensitive in children up to the age of five, 27 states have neither laws nor regulations that require the simple tests that might detect the first and curable signs of deafness in the young.

* * *

DEAFNESS induced by childish diseases, Schachtel pointed out, is a progressive situation that often goes unnoticed for three to six months after the cold, the whooping cough or the mumps are cured.

"Most of the children stricken," he added, "need never have been affected in the ear if adequate care had been taken to see that this delicate organ returned to normal health has well as the rest of the body."

One child out of every 23 suffers some form of hearing impairment, often due to ignorance and lack of action on the part of parents, teachers and the public in general.

No Frost Expected By Expert

Get In Garden Now, OSU Aide Urges

COLUMBUS, May 26—Tender vegetables planted now probably will escape any late frosts, accoring to V. E. Keirns, extension horticulturist at Ohio State university.

This means, he said, that an "all out" effort on garden planting now can be made. Assuming that all earlier vegetables have been planted, he recommends planting now beans of all kinds, vine crops such as cucumbers, muskmelons, watermelons and squash, and tomatoes, peppers and sweet potatoes.

Commenting on the frequent failure of lima beans to set pods, Keirns explained this was because of weather conditions, and sometimes to the variety.

"Gardeners who have been having trouble getting pods to set," he said, "might try planting a little later than usual, preferably this week in Central Ohio. This will give cooler weather at the time the flowers are in bloom, and this usually means a better set of pods."

He pointed out that vine crops consume a great deal of space and are grown largely in farm gardens, where space is not a limiting factor.

Watermelons, he declared, are the most difficult to grow, and require a constant supply of nitrogen throughout the growing season. This may be supplied on a small scale by placing five to ten pounds of well-rotted manure under each hill.

Keirns recommended putting the manure in a hole and covering with a two to three inches of topsoil before planting the seeds. He suggests planting quick maturing varieties in hills spaced about eight feet apart each way.

Club To Place Flowers Monday

Senior Stitch and Chatter 4-H Club made plans to gather flowers to decorate graves of veterans on Memorial Day during a meeting held in the home of its adviser, Mrs. William Defenbaugh.

Ruth Tucker gave a talk on home manicures. Demonstrations on cutting and fitting a pattern were given by Faye O'Hara and Lois, Barbara and Mary Ann Defenbaugh. Lunch was served at the conclusion of the meeting.

Folk Music Specialist Due For Degree

CINCINNATI, May 26—John Jacob Niles, internationally known folklorist and composer from Lexington, Ky., will receive an honorary doctor of music degree at Cincinnati Conservatory of Music commencement exercises June 2.

The conservatory also will confer an honorary doctor of letters degree on Cincinnati Civic Leader John J. Emery, who will deliver the commencement address.

Niles has sung his compositions, arrangements and folk adaptations in Paris, London and The Hague and at Oxford, Harvard and other universities and in American and European night clubs.

He accompanies himself on homemade dulcimers he constructs on his farm near Lexington.

Emery is president of the Cincinnati Institute of Fine Arts, Thomas Emery's Sons, Inc., Emery Industries, the Dayton and Michigan Railroad and the Cincinnati Art Museum.

Lucas County GOPster Ousted

TOLEDO, May 26—Ray U. Trumbull, former Republican executive committee chairman, was to submit a letter of resignation today as Lucas County board of elections clerk.

There was no indication, however, that Trumbull will resign from the GOP executive committee which ousted him from the chairmanship April 26.

Herman R. Miller, current Republican chairman, reported that a meeting of the Republican Party executive committee will be called Tuesday and it was learned that Harold Blackmore, former deputy county auditor, will be named to succeed Trumbull on the executive committee.

The grison or huron is a large mammal of South and Central America, weasel-like in form, and about two feet long without the tail which is a foot long.

Ashville's 28 Seniors Receive Their Diplomas

Ashville high school's 28 seniors were graduated Wednesday night during the school's 54th annual commencement exercises.

The program was opened with invocation, delivered by the Rev. J. D. Hopper, pastor of Ashville Evangelical United Brethren church, followed by the salutatory address by June Litten and the valedictory address by Marilyn Hollis.

The Rev. Floyd Faust, pastor of Columbus East Broad street Church of Christ, delivered the commencement address, "Acres of Diamonds."

Rev. Mr. Faust's address told of the man who sold his farm to search the world over for diamonds, but later found that a fortune in the precious gems had been discovered on the farm he had sold.

"Dig in where you are," he advised the graduating group.

The class was presented by C. E. Mahaffey, principal, and diplomas were presented by George D. McDowell, Pickaway County superintendent of schools. The program was concluded with benediction, spoken by the Rev. C. A. Holmquist, pastor of Ashville Lutheran church.

Music was presented by the high school orchestra directed by Charles Shell.

No Frost Expected By Expert

Get In Garden Now, OSU Aide Urges

COLUMBUS, May 26 -Tender vegetables planted now probably will escape any late frosts, accoring to V. E. Keirns, extension horticulturist at Ohio State university.

This means, he said, that an "all out" effort on garden planting now can be made. Assuming that all earlier vegetables have been planted, he recommends planting now beans of all kinds, vine crops such as cucumbers, muskmelons, watermelons and squash, and tomatoes, peppers and sweet potatoes.

Commenting on the frequent failure of lima beans to set pods, Keirns explained this was because of weather conditions, and sometimes to the variety.

"Gardeners who have been having trouble getting pods to set," he said, "might try planting a little later than usual, preferably this week in Central Ohio. This will give cooler weather at the time the flowers are in bloom, and this usually means a better set of pods."

He pointed out that vine crops consume a great deal of space and are grown largely in farm gardens, where space is not a limiting factor.

Watermelons, he declared, are the most difficult to grow, and require a constant supply of nitrogen throughout the growing season. This may be supplied on a small scale by placing five to ten pounds of well-rotted manure under each hill.

Keirns recommended putting the manure in a hole and covering with a two to three inches of topsoil before planting the seeds. He suggests planting quick maturing varieties in hills spaced about eight feet apart each way.

Lucas County GOPster Ousted

TOLEDO, May 26 — Ray U. Trumbull, former Republican executive committee chairman, was to submit a letter of resignation today as Lucas County board of elections clerk.

There was no indication, however, that Trumbull will resign from the GOP executive committee which ousted him from the chairmanship April 26.

Herman R. Miller, current Republican chairman, reported that a ...ng of the Republican Party executive committee will be called Tuesday and it was learned that Harold Blackmore, former deputy county auditor, will be named to succeed Trumbull on the executive committee.

Ashville's 28 Seniors Receive Their Diplomas

Ashville high school's 28 seniors were graduated Wednesday night during the school's 54th annual commencement exercises.

The program was opened with invocation, delivered by the Rev. J. D. Hopper, pastor of Ashville Evangelical United Brethren church, followed by the salutatory address by June Litten and the valedictory address by Marilyn Hollis.

The Rev. Floyd Faust, pastor of Columbus East Broad street Church of Christ, delivered the commencement address, "Acres of Diamonds."

Rev. Mr. Faust's address told of the man who sold his farm to search the world over for diamonds, but later found that a fortune in the precious gems had been discovered on the farm he had sold.

"Dig in where you are," he advised the graduating group.

The class was presented by C. E. Mahaffey, principal, and diplomas were presented by George D. McDowell, Pickaway County superintendent of schools. The program was concluded with benediction, spoken by the Rev. C. A. Holmquist, pastor of Ashville Lutheran church.

Music was presented by the high school orchestra directed by Charles Shell.

Pupils Pen Essays On Democracy

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is the sixth in a series of nine prize-winning essays on Democracy written by Circleville school pupils. One essay was selected as the best from each of the nine upper grades in the city system.

Why American Democracy is the Best Government on Earth

By GORDON BLAKE (Ninth Grade)

America, the land with "government of the people, by the people, and for the people," is the place where we have the great privilege of living. But with this privilege goes responsibility, the responsibility of maintaining Democracy, keeping America as it is today. I will try to explain my idea of this Democracy and how it works in one's everyday life.

First let's take labor. Labor in our country has set up unions which fight for the betterment of working conditions, better hours and better pay for the laborer. Most of our workers have a forty-hour week, with holidays and vacations.

One has enough money to buy food, necessities and luxuries, and still has some left over for savings. In what other country can they boast of the hours, the pay, and the working conditions the American laborer has?

Our government is made up of a representation of the people, voicing their opinions on the laws that will govern them.

Any one may campaign for any of these offices. One may set up a soapbox on any main street and tell the people why he thinks he is suited for the office. In this country there is no fear of the opposing party molesting him.

Voting is done by secret ballot with no one else knowing how one marks his ballot. To vote one must be over twenty-one years of age and in some states he must pass an intelligence test.

If the candidate receives enough votes, he is elected to the post for which he ran; and if he so desires, he may run again next year or even try for a higher position in the best government on earth.

To have a good Democracy the citizens must have a good education. Our schools are modern, with up-to-date teaching methods, equipment and facilities. In our schools the children learn the fundamentals of reading, writing, and arithmetic, but later on one may choose a vocation and prepare oneself for a specific job. Our schools are such that every one from the richest to the poorest may attend and get the benefit of a good education. With this education one may go out into the land of opportunity with a good chance of succeeding.

But to keep a country happy and thriving you can't have all work and no play. There are state parks for every one to enjoy with picnicking and camping facilities. There are movies for movie-goers, stage shows for others, zoos, large arenas for sport lovers with boxing, swimming, racing, football, and countless other activities. Then there is baseball, "the great American pastime." These recreations anyone may enjoy and a large percentage does.

Our country, by far, is the most fun-loving country and has the best facilities for having fun of any country on earth.

But the corner stone for our thriving, happy nation is the home and the little home town. In our towns are the best examples of people working, worshipping, and playing together. One may work where he wishes, play where he wishes, but best of all one may worship where, how, and when he desires to do so.

In the great American home is a small model of our government. There are rules by which the household abides and thrives. There are luxuries and conveniences as are had by no other common class in any country. Machines expedite the work, and machines furnish entertainment. The home is a private retreat for the family, theirs to live in and no one may lawfully enter without their permission. There are officers of the law in every town in the United States to see that these rights are upheld. All these things make American homes the happiest and most thriving in all the world, and American democracy has a fine corner stone in the home upon which it is based.

So America thrives upon the freedoms of worship, of speech, of laboring rights, of the press, of all the countless little and big things which make this a great nation. Let us all strive to keep our nation "indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

Pathology Unit Awaits Coroners

TOLEDO, May 26—A statewide pathological service for use by Ohio coroners is being considered by the Ohio State Coroners Association, which concludes its second annual seminar here today.

Dr. Frank Dutra, University of Cincinnati pathologist, told members yesterday that many coroners in rural areas do not have pathologists immediately available to help on investigations.

Dr. Dutra said that a pathological service would be established at Western Reserve university in Cleveland for Eastern Ohio counties in the Fall and that a similar service was being set up at Kettering Institute in Cincinnati.

One has enough money to buy food, necessities and luxuries, and still has some left over for savings. In what other country can they boast of the hours, the pay, and the working conditions the American laborer has?

Our government is made up of a representation of the people, voicing their opinions on the laws that will govern them.

Any one may campaign for any of these offices. One may set up a soapbox on any main street and tell the people why he thinks he is suited for the office. In this country there is no fear of the opposing party molesting him.

Voting is done by secret ballot with no one else knowing how one marks his ballot. To vote one must be over twenty-one years of age and in some states he must pass an intelligence test.

If the candidate receives enough votes, he is elected to the post for which he ran; and if he so desires, he may run again next year or even try for a higher position in the best government on earth.

To have a good Democracy the citizens must have a good education. Our schools are modern, with up-to-date teaching methods, equipment and facilities. In our schools the children learn the fundamentals of reading, writing, and arithmetic, but later on one may choose a vocation and prepare oneself for a specific job. Our schools are such that every one from the richest to the poorest may attend and get the benefit of a good education. With this education one may go out into the land of opportunity with a good chance of succeeding.

But to keep a country happy and thriving you can't have all work and no play. There are state parks for every one to enjoy with picnicking and camping facilities. There are movies for movie-goers, stage shows for others, zoos, large arenas for sport lovers with boxing, swimming, racing, football, and countless other activities. Then there is baseball, "the great American pastime." These recreations anyone may enjoy and a large percentage does.

Our country, by far, is the most fun-loving country and has the best facilities for having fun of any country on earth.

But the corner stone for our thriving, happy nation is the home and the little home town. In our towns are the best examples of people working, worshipping, and playing together. One may work where he wishes, play where he wishes, but best of all one may worship where, how, and when he desires to do so.

In the great American home is a small model of our government. There are rules by which the household abides and thrives. There are luxuries and conveniences as are had by no other common class in any country. Machines expedite the work, and machines furnish entertainment. The home is a private retreat for the family, theirs to live in and no one may lawfully enter without their permission. There are officers of the law in every town in the United States to see that these rights are upheld. All these things make American homes the happiest and most thriving in all the world, and American democracy has a fine corner stone in the home upon which it is based.

So America thrives upon the freedoms of worship, of speech, of laboring rights, of the press, of all the countless little and big things which make this a great nation. Let us all strive to keep our nation "indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

Pathology Unit Awaits Coroners

TOLEDO, May 26—A statewide pathological service for use by Ohio coroners is being considered by the Ohio State Coroners Association, which concludes its second annual seminar here today.

Dr. Frank Dutra, University of Cincinnati pathologist, told members yesterday that many coroners in rural areas do not have pathologists immediately available to help on investigations.

Dr. Dutra said that a pathological service would be established at Western Reserve university in Cleveland for Eastern Ohio counties in the Fall and that a similar service was being set up at Kettering Institute in Cincinnati.

Gobang is a Japanese table game of great antiquity. It was invented by the Emperor Jao in 2350 B. C., and is much like checkers.

With Cuplets, make 12 to 18 light and tender cup cakes every time. You can't miss. Just add an egg and milk.

100-Mile-Hour Club Awaits Annual Meet

INDIANAPOLIS, May 26—The world's most exclusive club—the Champion 100-Mile-An-Hour Club—holds its annual meeting here tonight.

There are only 28 living members of the organization. Membership is limited to auto racing drivers who have participated in the Indianapolis 500-mile race and have averaged 100 miles an hour for the annual classic.

President of the club before he was killed last fall in a race at Du Quoin, Ill., was Ted Horn of Patterson, N. J.

Wilbur Shaw, three-time winner of the Memorial Day grind and now president of the Indianapolis Speedway, will serve in Horn's place tonight at the meeting and banquet.

Four new members who earned their way into the organization in last year's classic will be initiated at the session. They are Lee Wallard, Duke Nalon, Hal Cole and Mac Hellings.

Meanwhile, 26 cars are being readied for Saturday's final day of qualifying trials for Monday's grind.

Twenty-seven racers have passed their tests in earlier runs, with three of them getting under the wire yesterday. After the next six cars pass their time trials the faster qualifiers will begin replacing the slower racers in the 33-car starting field.

NEPTUNITE
SPAR VARNISH

The resistance of this varnish to blazing sun, heavy rains, snow, ice and sub-freezing temperatures, permits Neptunite Spar Varnish to give that needed extra protection to door exteriors, watercraft and other exposed surfaces. Here is a varnish that gives a tough, lustrous, hard finish at low cost. It is excellent, too, for superior inside use.

100-Mile-Hour Club Awaits Annual Meet

INDIANAPOLIS, May 26—The world's most exclusive club—the Champion 100-Mile-An-Hour Club—holds its annual meeting here tonight.

There are only 28 living members of the organization. Membership is limited to auto racing drivers who have participated in the Indianapolis 500-mile race and have averaged 100 miles an hour for the annual classic.

President of the club before he was killed last fall in a race at Du Quoin, Ill., was Ted Horn of Patterson, N. J.

Wilbur Shaw, three-time winner of the Memorial Day grind and now president of the Indianapolis Speedway, will serve in Horn's place tonight at the meeting and banquet.

Four new members who earned their way into the organization in last year's classic will be initiated at the session. They are Lee Wallard, Duke Nalon, Hal Cole and Mac Hellings.

Meanwhile, 26 cars are being readied for Saturday's final day of qualifying trials for Monday's grind.

Twenty-seven racers have passed their tests in earlier runs, with three of them getting under the wire yesterday. After the next six cars pass their time trials the faster qualifiers will begin replacing the slower racers in the 33-car starting field.

Cards Stop Win Streak Of Braves

Southpaw Hurlers Prove Upsetters

NEW YORK, May 26—Maybe Eddie Dyer, the canny manager of the St. Louis Cards, has come up with the solution to stopping those Boston Braves.

Until they hit St. Louis, the Braves were hustling along atop the National League standings, seemingly with every intention of repeating last year's championship.

But the Cards have stopped them cold twice running — with southpaw pitching. Yesterday, it was Howie Pollet who authored a six-hit, 3-to-0 shutout, following up Harry Brecheen's 3-to-1 Tuesday night triumph.

It may be that the Cards have started a drive to get into the thick of the National League race. They're now only 4-½ games back, and Pollet's victory over Warren Spahn was the first Card shutout of the year.

FORTUNATELY for Boston, Second Place New York again failed to take advantage of a chance to go into the lead. Bob Rush of the Chicago Cubs bested the Giants and Monty Kennedy, 3 to 2, so the Giants still trail.

Both Brooklyn, in third, and Cincinnati, in fourth, picked up a full game. Brooklyn cashed in on Jack Banta's fine relief hurling to defeat Pittsburgh, 8 to 6, while Cincinnati's Bud Lively edged Philadelphia, 3 to 2.

Southpaw Tommy Byrne was a one-man gang for the American League's leading New York Yankees. He fanned 12, allowed only five hits and hit two doubles himself as the Yanks bested Detroit and Hal Newhouser, 6 to 2.

The last place St. Louis Browns spanked Third Place Boston, 8 to 4, ending a four-game Red Sox winning streak. Cliff Fannin and Tom Ferrick combined to pitch a five-hitter and Jack Graham's homer led a 13-hit assault on Joe Dobson and Earl Johnson.

All the Boston runs came off Fannin in the sixth, three of them on a homerun smashed by ex-Brownie Al Zarilla.

* * *

WASHINGTON crept within a few percentage points of Boston with a 6-to-2 win over Cleveland in a night game. Larry Doby's 400-foot homerun in the fourth robbed Sid Hudson of a shutout.

In another night game, Philadelphia stayed 3-½ games in back of the Yankees. The A's defeated Chicago, 6 to 4, although outhit 13-to-7 by the White Sox.

Delaney Wins With One Punch

AKRON, May 26—Akron Welterweight Ronnie Delaney will have to turn to the sports pages of his favorite newspaper today to get a better look at his latest opponent.

He needed just one punch and 55 seconds of the first round to knockout Chuck Hurst, Detroit welter, last night in a scheduled 10-rounder in Akron Armory. Delaney has now extended his victory string to 14 in a row.

Iowa Hoping For Big 9 Lead

CHICAGO, May 26 — Jack Bruner, who has won five of his team's seven victories and struck out 54 opposing batsmen in 49 innings, may be the stepping stone between underdog Iowa and first place in the Big Nine baseball standings this weekend.

The Hawkeyes are host to cellar-locked Northwestern in a two-game Friday-Saturday set in Iowa City. Meanwhile Purdue, a game ahead of Iowa and Indiana, entertains Indiana. Thus, a two-game sweep for Iowa while Purdue and Indiana split will put the Hawks atop the ladder. Other weekend encounters send Wisconsin to Michigan and Ohio State to Minnesota.

MERCHANTS' FACES RED

Legion Kids Play 'David,' Slay A Mighty 'Goliath'

The battle (baseball-wise, that is) of little David vs. Goliath was relived in Ted Lewis Park Wednesday when Circleville American Legion Junior team trimmed the Circleville Merchants, 5-2.

Although the defeated ones loudly point out that "it was only a practice tilt," the high schoolers on the Legion squad gave a show of power that should place it near the top of the heap during the coming season.

The match appeared top-heavy toward the older Merchant team during the first frame when the first three Legion players were retired in order and the Merchants latched onto a single run in the last of the stanza.

The Juniors showed their power in the third inning, however, when they stole the lead away from the older squad by tallying three runs. Merchant swatters could score only one more tally during the game, a single in the last of the third.

* * *

BOTH TEAMS were scoreless during the fourth and fifth innings, but the Legion batters regained their batting eyes in the sixth inning to ice the game with another brace of runs, giving the final 5-2 count.

Both teams are to play over Memorial Day weekend, the Merchants slated to travel to Hebron Sunday afternoon for a Tri-County League game and the Legion youngsters to open their season in Ted Lewis Park Monday against Centerburg. Both games are to be played at 2 p. m.

Negotiations to make the Monday bill a double-header were being conducted Thursday by James P. Shea, Legion athletic officer.

If the arrangements are completed, the Legion team will play at 1 p. m. Monday and the Merchants will play the second half of the bill against Millersport at about 3 p. m.

Saints, Brewers To Meet In AA Flag Battle

COLUMBUS, May 26—All eyes in the American Association will be on St. Paul tonight where the second place hosts will go up against the League-Leading Milwaukee Brewers.

Only one game and two percentage points separate St. Paul from the top spot which Milwaukee took over Monday in the season's first challenge to Saint supremacy.

Louisville Pitcher Jack Robinson held Indianapolis hitless until the seventh yesterday, but the Indians pulled ahead 3-2, and Toledo whipped Columbus 8-5 in the only games scheduled.

This quartet will repeat tonight and Kansas City will take on Minneapolis at the Millers' home camp.

Robinson's no-hitter was spoiled when Jack Cassini came up and then Ted Beard slammed one over the rightfield fence. The Colonels then tied the score, routing Jim Walsh in favor of Johnny Hutchings. The winning Indian run came in the ninth when a sacrifice by Cassini and a single by Nanny Fernandez drove in Tom Saffell.

Mudhen Hal White held Columbus well under control until a wrenched shoulder retired him in the eighth and Ed March took over. Toledo pounded Pete Bryant, John Mikan and Ike Pearson for 11 hits. George Lerchin lead the attack with three for four.

That expedition that went to Cocos Island looking for $60,000,000 worth of buried treasure got back safe and sound, but with less treasure than it started with. Hundreds of seekers have looked for the loot over the past century, but all of them would have been money ahead if they'd stuck around home and prospected for returned nickels in pay telephones. If the treasure is there, it was hidden by a fellow who wasn't playing games. Probably everyone dreams of finding a pot of gold, but more and more it's beginning to look as though the only way to get it is to earn it. We're sorry, too.

Delaney Wins With One Punch

AKRON, May 26—Akron Welterweight Ronnie Delaney will have to turn to the sports pages of his favorite newspaper today to get a better look at his latest opponent.

He needed just one punch and 55 seconds of the first round to knockout Chuck Hurst, Detroit welter, last night in a scheduled 10-rounder in Akron Armory. Delaney has now extended his victory string to 14 in a row.

Iowa Hoping For Big 9 Lead

CHICAGO, May 26 — Jack Bruner, who has won five of his team's seven victories and struck out 54 opposing batsmen in 49 innings, may be the stepping stone between underdog Iowa and first place in the Big Nine baseball standings this weekend.

The Hawkeyes are host to cellar-locked Northwestern in a two-game Friday-Saturday set in Iowa City. Meanwhile Purdue, a game ahead of Iowa and Indiana, entertains Indiana. Thus, a two-game sweep for Iowa while Purdue and Indiana split will put the Hawks atop the ladder. Other weekend encounters send Wisconsin to Michigan and Ohio State to Minnesota.

MERCHANTS' FACES RED

Legion Kids Play 'David,' Slay A Mighty 'Goliath'

The battle (baseball-wise, that is) of little David vs. Goliath was relived in Ted Lewis Park Wednesday when Circleville American Legion Junior team trimmed the Circleville Merchants, 5-2.

Although the defeated ones loudly point out that "it was only a practice tilt," the high schoolers on the Legion squad gave a show of power that should place it near the top of the heap during the coming season.

The match appeared top-heavy toward the older Merchant team during the first frame when the first three Legion players were retired in order and the Merchants latched onto a single run in the last of the stanza.

The Juniors showed their power in the third inning, however, when they stole the lead away from the older squad by tallying three runs. Merchant swatters could score only one more tally during the game, a single in the last of the third.

• • •

BOTH TEAMS were scoreless during the fourth and fifth innings, but the Legion batters regained their batting eyes in the sixth inning to ice the game with another brace of runs, giving the final 5-2 count.

Both teams are to play over Memorial Day weekend, the Merchants slated to travel to Hebron Sunday afternoon for a Tri-County League game and the Legion youngsters to open their season in Ted Lewis Park Monday against Centerburg. Both games are to be played at 2 p. m.

Negotiations to make the Monday bill a double-header were being conducted Thursday by James P. Shea, Legion athletic officer.

If the arrangements are completed, the Legion team will play at 1 p. m. Monday and the Merchants will play the second half of the bill against Millersport at about 3 p. m.

Saints, Brewers To Meet In AA Flag Battle

COLUMBUS, May 26—All eyes in the American Association will be on St. Paul tonight where the second place hosts will go up against the League-Leading Milwaukee Brewers.

Only one game and two percentage points separate St. Paul from the top spot which Milwaukee took over Monday in the season's first challenge to Saint supremacy.

Louisville Pitcher Jack Robinson held Indianapolis hitless until the seventh yesterday, but the Indians pulled ahead 3-2, and Toledo whipped Columbus 8-5 in the only games scheduled.

This quartet will repeat tonight and Kansas City will take on Minneapolis at the Millers' home camp.

Robinson's no-hitter was spoiled when Jack Cassini came up and then Ted Beard slammed one over the rightfield fence. The Colonels then tied the score, routing Jim Walsh in favor of Johnny Hutchings. The winning Indian run came in the ninth when a sacrifice by Cassini and a single by Nanny Fernandez drove in Tom Saffell.

Mudhen Hal White held Columbus well under control until a wrenched shoulder retired him in the eighth and Ed March took over. Toledo pounded Pete Bryant, John Mikan and Ike Pearson for 11 hits. George Lerchin lead the attack with three for four.

Pen-To-Pen System Of Hog Marketing Gaining Favor

Agent Says Plan Cites Quality

Scales No Longer Set Final Price

The old weight-schedule method of selling hogs is being replaced by a pen-to-pen system of marketing.

Under this new method of selling, buyers and salesmen at the markets agree on the price right in the pen before the hogs are weighed. The buyer is given a chance to recognize quality and pay a premium for good hogs.

The reason for increased interest in marketing is that the weight-schedule system fails to recognize the differences between hogs. It also fails to pay for true quality, according to Larry A. Best, Pickaway County agricultural agent.

Under the old schedule-selling, salesmen and buyers at market would agree in the morning on how many hogs each buyer would get. A schedule of prices was set up according to weight. "Hogs was hogs" and the scales determined the price.

* * *

FARMERS JUDGED probable market prices by estimating the weight of their animals. A premium of 50 cents per hundredweight was considered unusual at the market although the real value of hogs of the same weight varies as much as $5 or $6 per animal. Such premiums offered poor pay to the expert producer who raises top-quality hogs worth more money.

Another reason for the new system is the fear that if a better job of selling isn't done, hogs may be sold on a dressed carcass basis. This method of marketing (used in Canada) is being explored by many individuals, farmer cooperatives, agricultural experiment stations and studies under the Federal Research and Marketing Act. Many public market persons also are worried about the decline in volume of hogs arriving for sale at terminal markets.

The latter problem is important because an increasing number of hogs today are going directly to packers. As late as 1934, approximately 58 percent of the hogs slaughtered under federal inspection were purchased at public markets. The figure dropped to 36 percent by 1947.

The farmer doesn't gain when he consigns hogs to a commission firm if the firm only drives the hogs to the scales and sells them at prices scheduled by the packers.

Hog producers deserve the best possible markets the trade can provide. As long as farmers were forced to sell their hogs with little or no consideration for quality, there was little incentive for improvement in breeding, feeding and handling the animals.

Police Probing Attempt To Force Marriage

TOLEDO, May 26—Alice Haddad 20, and Joseph Gunselman, 22, were to appear before Toledo police prosecutors today for questioning in regard to Gunselman's alleged attempt to force the girl to marry him at gunpoint.

Police said that the two, who were to be married last November, were picked up in a restaurant in nearby Napoleon when the girl saw Napoleon Mayor Lackerman and told him that Gunselman was forcing her to marry him.

According to Gunselman, Miss Haddad "kept changing her mind" about marriage. He told police that he decided Tuesday "there would be no more changing."

Gunselman drove to Napoleon, he added, with Miss Haddad, but were told in that city that they must wait three days to be married.

The couple then took blood tests, he stated, and went to a restaurant to await the results. Gunselman said that Miss Haddad changed her mind again at the restaurant.

The girl stated, however, that he threatened her with a gun Tuesday and forced her to go with him to Napoleon. She said that he drove with one hand and kept the gun in the other. Miss Haddad said she saw Mayor Lackerman in the restaurant and asked him for help.

Toledo Store Hit By Fire

TOLEDO, May 26—A $60,000 fire, which raged for nearly five hours, destroyed the Karp department store here late yesterday.

Fire Chief Patrick J. Daley said the inaccessability of the flames, which started in the basement, and the collapse of the first floor into the basement made the fire difficult to combat. A neighboring shoe store estimated damage at $5,000 from smoke.

Nickel Trade Checks Bring Board Action

COLUMBUS, May 26 — A 30-year system of selling nickel checks in exchange for the privilege of playing rum was to end today at the Arcade in Ashland as the state liquor board took its gambling charge under advisement.

Operators G. D. Jacobs and C. H. Mansfield, brother of Ashland's acting mayor, told the board yesterday afternoon they did not know the practice was in violation of the law until a state liquor inspector ordered the games stopped last April 22.

Attorney Robert H. Henderson explained that four players from every five-man rum game each paid five cents and that low man in the previous game collected the chips, good for five cents in merchandise without paying anything.

The board said it never had heard of such a system.

The board also took under advisement the case of Ashland's Eagles' Aerie No. 2178, charged with selling whisky. The Aerie holds only a high-power beer and wine permit.

Attorney J. L. Mason said the Eagles members wished to give up their permit because "they feel they can get along better without it," but the board ruled the case must be heard.
